Celebrity in the Village (A Short Story) Hawa Allan

This story was originally published in Day One, a weekly literary journal dedicated to short fiction and poetry from emerging writers.

Gabby has always called Bella when she's between boyfriends. And, over the long course of their friendship, Bella has grown accustomed to being invisible at bars and at parties, where Gabby's casual white prettiness always trumps Bella's self-conscious black beauty. So when Gabby invites Bella on a trip to Reykjavík, Iceland, both women are surprised to find that Bella is the one who attracts the local attention among the pale people of the north. As their roles are reversed, the two begin to question their assumptions about each other—and wonder whether their intermittent but reliable friendship will survive this new understanding.
